

"She thinks you are going to abandon me," said Yves. (...)

"Abandon you?" (...) You mean - she thinks I'm running away from you?, answered Eric.

"She does not really mean any harm", Yves said. "She thought that she was speaking for my good".

"She thinks it's good for you to distrust me?"(...)

"People do not take the relations between boys seriously, you know that. We will never know many people who believe we love each other."

Another Country, by James Baldwin (1962)

Glossary

Think: pensar (thought: passado)

Running away: fugir

Any harm: mal nenhum

Distrust: não confiar

Take __ seriously: levar ____ seriamente

Each other: um ao outro

---

"She thinks you are going to abandon me," said Yves. (...)

"Abandon you?" (...) You mean - she thinks I'm running away from you?, answered Eric.

"She does not really mean any harm", Yves said. "She thought that she was speaking for my good".

"She thinks it's good for you to distrust me?"(...)

"People do not take the relations between boys seriously, you know that. We will never know many people who believe we love each other."

Another Country, by James Baldwin (1962)

Glossary

Think: pensar (thought: passado)

Running away: fugir

Any harm: mal nenhum

Distrust: não confiar

Take __ seriously: levar ____ seriamente

Each other: um ao outro

---

"She thinks you are going to abandon me," said Yves. (...)

"Abandon you?" (...) You mean - she thinks I'm running away from you?, answered Eric.

"She does not really mean any harm", Yves said. "She thought that she was speaking for my good".

"She thinks it's good for you to distrust me?"(...)

"People do not take the relations between boys seriously, you know that. We will never know many people who believe we love each other."

Another Country, by James Baldwin (1962)

Glossary

Think: pensar (thought: passado)

Running away: fugir

Any harm: mal nenhum

Distrust: não confiar

Take __ seriously: levar ____ seriamente

Each other: um ao outro