

Output - Post-reading discussion

- 1) Discuss the following questions with your classmates. Think about the forum you explored and the characteristics you have found in it.
 - a) What is important to know in order to participate in an online forum?
 - b) Do you think the objective of a forum and your objective with it (ex. research) can affect your participation in it?
 - c) Why would you participate in an online forum?
 - d) Is it important to know who the participants are, the kind of language used to have a better participation in a forum? Why?
 - e) Do you think that recognizing forum characteristics such as language, question, participants, and objective can contribute to your comprehension of the forum and eventual participation? How?
-

Output - Post-reading discussion

- 1) Discuss the following questions with your classmates. Think about the forum you explored and the characteristics you have found in it.
 - a) What is important to know in order to participate in an online forum?
 - b) Do you think the objective of a forum and your objective with it (ex. research) can affect your participation in it?
 - c) Why would you participate in an online forum?
 - d) Is it important to know who the participants are, the kind of language used to have a better participation in a forum? Why?
 - e) Do you think that recognizing forum characteristics such as language, question, participants, and objective can contribute to your comprehension of the forum and eventual participation? How?
-

Output - Post-reading discussion

- 1) Discuss the following questions with your classmates. Think about the forum you explored and the characteristics you have found in it.
 - a) What is important to know in order to participate in an online forum?
 - b) Do you think the objective of a forum and your objective with it (ex. research) can affect your participation in it?
 - c) Why would you participate in an online forum?
 - d) Is it important to know who the participants are, the kind of language used to have a better participation in a forum? Why?
 - e) Do you think that recognizing forum characteristics such as language, question, participants, and objective can contribute to your comprehension of the forum and eventual participation? How?