STORY 1

Once upon a time, in New York lived a little girl. She was called Little Red Riding Hood, because she had a red riding hood. She also had a rich grandma.

One day, her mother said to her: “My daughter, this weekend you will visit your grandma because your dad and I are going to Paris”. So the little Red Riding Hood prepared her things. Her mother gave her a tear-gas grenade, because she said that in Central Park there would be thieves and pedophiles.

So Little Red Riding Hood went to her grandmother’s. When she arrived in Central Park, a girl with a trolley approached and said to her: “Hello, how are you? Would you like some ice cream? I have too much of it and it’s warm today.”

Little Red Riding Hood took her tear gas grenade and said to her: “Sorry, my mother told me not to speak to strangers.” And she sprayed it at the poor ice-cream seller, then she ran away.

Later, a man dressed in a wolf skin said to her: “Hello, is it OK?” Little Red Riding Hood took her tear gas grenade and said to him: “Sorry, my mother told me not to speak to strangers.” The man replied: “I am not a stranger, I’m a wolf. Where are you going?”

Unthoughtfully, Little Red Riding Hood told him all her life and that she was going to her grandma’s. Then, they left. While the girl was walking very distractedly to her grandma’s, the man rushed to her house. There, he imprisoned the grandma in the cellar and went to watch TV, because there was “Yo Mamma” on MTV.

Little Red Riding Hood arrived at her grandma’s house. When she entered, she was also imprisoned.

Little Red Riding Hood's mother called, but as nobody answered, she called the police. The New York experts arrived at the grandma's house, killed the man and released them .

Since then, Little Red Riding Hood does not approach any strangers, and the grandma has a tear gas grenade.

STORY 2

Once upon a time, in a country where luck does not exist, a little girl lived there with her mother. Her name was the Red Riding Hood. One day, her mother said to her:

“You have to visit your grandmother and take her a basket with a cake.”

So the girl was going to her grandmother’s house - she lived in the middle of the woods - when, on her way, she met a starving fox, attracted by all the food in Red Riding Hood’s basket. He said:

“Little girl, where are you going with your basket?”

She answered: “I am going to my grandmother’s house, she has a beautiful house in the middle of the woods.”

The fox said: “Oh I know, it’s a beautiful house, but...”

Little Red Riding Hood got worried and said: “What? but continue.”

The fox had a stomach ache and he said: “My stomach is empty, hnnnn.... the hunger is killing me.”

Red Riding Hood said: “Poor thing! Take it.”

The fox thanked the little girl, and he said: “I heard that a wolf was robbing your grandmother, I thought you would like my help to find your grandmother, so I accepted it!”

The fox and Red Riding Hood resumed walking to the grandmother’s house. When they arrived, they could see that the house was almost empty and the wolf was sleeping in the grandmother’s bed. They had the idea of killing the wolf and saving the grandmother. The fox tied up the wolf and the girl shouted: “Wolf, where is my grandmother?”

The wolf answered: “I don’t know.”

Red Riding Hood said: “Bad answer” and the fox electrocuted the wolf. The girl repeated her question, but the wolf was dead, and they didn’t find the grandmother!